Church Humour. A little boy was fidgeting during worship one Sunday morning. Spotting a big brass plaque with dozens of names engraved on it installed in the back wall, the little boy asked his father, What are all those names on that plaque? The father helpfully answered, Those are the names of all the members of our church who died in the service. Wide eyed, the little boy then asked, Was that the 9.30 or the 11.00 service?
